FOREWORD

David Burgess, The Legal 500

The Legal 500 is delighted to welcome you to GC Summit: Japan 2019. With over 100 of Japan's leading in-house lawyers joining us today, the event underscores the importance that the legal function can make to domestic and international businesses.

Japan has seen a tail off in trade volumes, with the trade disagreements between China and the United States having a trickle-down effect, the signs for the Japanese economy are uncertain. Public sector investment has been strong, but that is offset against a weaker private sector.

Future uncertainty in trade and supply chains will present increasing challenges for businesses, as does the potential easing of the Bank of Japan's monetary policy. What will this mean for Japan's international business - some of the country's senior in-house counsel provided thoughts, suggestions and comments on the panels we will enjoy today.

We have benefited from the support and insight provided to us by some of the leading law and advisory firms active in Japan. We would like to thank our sponsors AlixPartners, Allen & Overy, Atsumi & Sakai, Chien Yeh Law Offices, Dentons, Greenberg Traurig, Herbert Smith Freehills, Hirayama Law Offices and Nagashima Ohno Tsunematsu for their support and invaluable input.

Today's conference will cover topics including cross-border M&A, investment challenges and opportunities in EMEA, innovation in the legal function, effective dispute resolution, data protection and privacy, antitrust amendments, risk management and e-sports. We look forward to hearing from Japan's leading private practice lawyers and in-house counsel, but above all we hope this gathering will be a useful opportunity to discuss how general counsel can more effectively serve the needs of business.

The Legal 500 will continue to work on new and innovative ways of bringing GCs and their advisers together. If you have any suggestions for how we might make next year's conference even better then please do let us know. We hope you enjoy the conference and keep providing feedback.
